March 21st, 2003

Hello from the Gurney's Spa!

We haven't seen you recently and we've missed you. We're writing to tell you of our new gym equipment, our fall membership and spa/salon specials, and our new exciting line up of aerobic/mind/body classes.

The new exercise machines are FANTASTIC and have been received very well. Come in and see how our new equipment can get your Body in Shape. Get the most out of your body with the least amount of wear and tear on your joints. We now have three new elliptical machines, a new Precor upright bike, a Smith machine, new lat pull-down and rowing machine, and three new leg machines, one of which women love-the inner/outer thigh machine. You will be happy to know the new lat and leg machines are pin loaded rather than plate loaded (no heavy weights to move).

Our Spa Membership Special runs now through the end of May as part of our introduction to our new gym. For the first time ever, buy the twelve (12) Month Membership and receive 2 months free for $650 single/$1100 double. You can add unlimited classes for $100/6 month or $200/12 months respectively.

Membership includes use of Finnish rock saunas, Russian steam rooms, Swiss Showers, Roman Seawater Baths, King-sized heated indoor seawater swimming pool, Gymnasium and equipment, and locker facilities.

A new benefit for members is that they will have access to the gym at 7:00am instead of 8:00am. (This applies only to the gym. Pool and pavilions open at 8:00am).

Our Special LOCAL DISCOUNT is starting NOW and runs up to Memorial Day weekend. Show your driver's licenses with an East Hampton Town address and receive a 10% discount on Spa & Salon services and products. Please take a look at our new spa brochure and the many new spa services and packages we are providing this year. We look forward to seeing you soon. Be healthy!!!

Dear Customer,

Thank you for considering our company for your fencing needs. I would like to tell you about Consumer Fence, as well as educate you about our industry. There are some key points you need to be made aware of as you are in the process of making a large investment. There are many options and styles for you to choose from. That is why it is so important to ask questions and to know the product. In the outline to follow you will learn what it is you need to look for when deciding on a fence.

1. Knowledge of the Product

You should know exactly what you are receiving as far as quality and material components. As you know, P.V.C. has become the most popular fencing product. The plastic division of our company has continually increased 30% each year for the last three years. Research the type of vinyl being used. We fabricate (build on our premises) "virgin vinyl" or "mono extruded." This is true vinyl in its purest form. It is the strongest, will hold up to the elements better and should not discolor. On the other hand, others use "co extruded vinyl" which can be recycled materials on the inside and virgin only on the outer layer. This is a cheaper route for other companies to take. The construction of all the privacy panels include a 2" x 8" bottom rail. This prevents sagging at the bottom of your fence, obviously a very important detail to ask about. The gate , whether you choose one or two remains the most important element of your fence. We build our gates on a 5' x 5' frame. The gates are thick and rigid. This creates a solid and sturdy beginning for the years of use to come. Inside the frame of our gate are sockets which hold the gate together. We then hang the gates on stainless steel hardware, which which holds up the best compared to all other materials.

2. Workmanship

Your job will be done with the finest precision and knowledge in the industry. The installers working for Consumer Fence in all three locations are professionals who have been with us for over 12 years. Fencing is a seasonal business, and I have made a commitment to keep all of my employees in their job for all twelve months of the year. Here at Consumer Fence we are proud of our 92% employee retention rate. Most companies lay their staff off at the end of the season. This usually causes what I like to call "company jumping." When this occurs, the customer winds up with an inexperienced , unprofessional crew to install their fence. The end result being a very unpleasant, frustrating experience.

From Consumer Fence as well as HomelandVinyl Products, Inc., you will receive a lifetime and transferable warranty. That speaks for itself. Virgin vinyl - the only product to use.

3. Pricing

We believe your price quote is also an important detail in your decision. Many consumers wonder why there can be such drastic differences in price between companies. There are a few different reasons why:

A. Material being purchased in bulk, lowering costs.

B. The quality of the grade you are purchasing
(ie: #1 cedar / spruce or #2 cedar / spruce, virgin vinyl or recycled vinyl)

These are the ploys many companies use, especially if you are not knowledgeable in these areas.

Consumer Fence is a family business dedicated to you, the consumer. We have over 18 years of experience and it is important to us that you feel comfortable from the first phone call to the end result. We believe that our commitment to fabricate and install the best P.V.C., wood and chain link systems will leave our customers very satisfied.

Thank you for choosing Consumer Fence.

"We Go The Distance For You"

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

Killer Ecuadorian Eel Lured Out Of Trout Pond In Noyac

By Dan Rattiner

Call them Mister and Missus. On Saturday afternoon, after three days of trying, the Hamptons at long last rid itself of the giant 37 foot long eel that had terrorized this area for much of the winter. Accompanied by military helicopters, five police boats, forty pleasure craft and three tug boats from the Port of New York spraying jets of water from fire hoses, this blue killer eel from Ecuador, accompanied by an even longer pink female Ecuadorian eel, sailed off side by side through Peconic Bay to the open waters of the Atlantic.

Greta... was the lure to get the unnamed male 37-foot Ecuadorian eel, who had already killed a truck driver... out of Trout Pond.

The event was not without incident. People aboard a sportfishing boat from Bay Shore, ignoring directions from officers on a Shelter Island police boat directing the operation, turned and got in the way of the eels. Snarling, the eels wrapped themselves around the fishing boat and dragged it under. At least two people on board were killed and, apparently, eaten before the eels continued on their way. A third man is unaccounted for. All that remained, floating in the waves, were a few empty life jackets, some fishing floats and a few pieces of wooden debris.

The operation began, appropriately enough, on Thursday morning, with the arrival in Sag Harbor of a huge tractor trailer truck bearing a giant pink female eel strapped on the back. It had been a long ride from Gabreski Airport in Westhampton, where this female eel, called Greta, had resided briefly after flying in from Ecuador. A veterinarian accompanied Greta on the trip and, arriving in Sag Harbor sitting in the cab of the tractor trailer with the driver, seemed anxious about his charge. Although he spoke no English, he made it clear with hand motions that rather than talk to reporters awaiting him at Long Wharf, he wanted to get Greta back in the water as quickly as possible. Indeed, she was breathing rapidly and shallowly at the time, making little wheezing noises, her eyes with the long lashes closed and her tongue hanging out. Her body, which was supposed to be pink, was grey.

Mayor Farkas, in the meantime, was standing by on Long Wharf at a press conference called by Police Chief Pasta. He was waiting to present a key to the city to the veterinarian from Ecuador. But Pasta, after seeing Greta's condition, cut the press conference short and sent the truck driver up Ferry Road to Long Beach Road and then to the launching ramp at Pine Neck on Mill Creek where town environmentalists awaited. All we were able to learn was that the vet was named Xapacatopec Gul and that he spoke Ecuadorian.

Mayor Farkas explained. "It was a long trip. He pointed to himself and said his name. I could see right away that me and the chief should just get him and Greta up there." The mayor still had the wooden key to the city with the bow on it in his hand. The presentation would have to wait.

Up at the town boat launching ramp at Pine Neck, Greta was so weak that, after her straps were loosened, she did not have the strength to slide off into the water. The vet kept saying "Xleit Xlrr, Xleit Xlrr," but it didn't work. Finally everybody there, about two hundred people, men, women and children, pushed at Greta until, hissing, she rolled over and off the flatbed and slithered down the launching ramp into the water.

By then, it was late afternoon, and the police insisted everybody go home so the courting could take place.

Greta, as I'm sure you know, was the lure to get the unnamed male 37-foot Ecuadorian eel, who had already killed a truck driver and had tried to kill a hunter, out of Trout Pond, back out to the ocean and off to Ecuador. The plan, in a nutshell, was for Greta to call to the male, which actually did happen all day Friday and Saturday morning, and then for the male to wriggle through a six-foot diameter sewer pipe outfall that connected Trout Pond with Mill Creek to get to her. It was through this sewer pipe, apparently, that he had gotten into Trout Pond. Greta — Ecuadorian eels are one of the few species where females are bigger than males — would be too large to get into the pond.

And, eventually, that is exactly what happened.

First, though, Greta slept. And as the sun was setting at Pine Creek, Mr. Gul had smiled and made that universal sign of sleep, which was putting both hands together, raising them to his cheek, cocking his head against them and closing his eyes. We all got the message.

"I believe Greta will sleep through the night," Chief Pasta said. "That's what the people in Quito, Ecuador, said would happen in the fax they sent."

That evening, a grand buffet feast was held in Mr. Gul's honor at the American Hotel, with about fifty people attending. At that time, it was learned that Mr. Gul spoke not only no English but no language that anybody knew. A long distance call was placed to Quito to our contacts there and Mr. Gul was urged to speak into the phone, which he did hesitantly, but in Quito they said they didn't understand him either. Chief Pasta took the cell phone back and talked awhile.

"Apparently," he said, "there are people in the mountains of Ecuador who speak languages that have never been translated."

Mr. Gul raised his arms over his head, grasped his hands together and smiled. Everybody cheered. After dinner, he was taken down to the Baron's Cove Inn for the night where, apparently, he slept outdoors on the lawn.

Musicians from the Perlman School of Music on Shelter Island were the first to arrive on the shores of Pine Creek on Friday morning, bearing instruments and folding chairs. By eight o'clock, they were playing the third of an expected six Brandenburg Concertos, when Mr. Gul, reporters, Chief Pasta and Mayor Farkas arrived.

Though they had not been expected, the Mayor expressed satisfaction that they were there, serenading Greta at that hour, but Mr. Gul seemed quite agitated.

"Xwhwos Xlymooos," he said waving his arms and pointing further away from the shore. The musicians moved back, which turned out to be a good thing because a half hour later Greta, with a great swipe of her tail, swept the lawn where they had just been. After that, the musicians packed up and left.

No further interesting things happened for the rest of Friday, except that Greta, who now was very pink and apparently in the best of health, kept swishing back and forth underwater, occasionally letting out a sort of moaning sound. Some of the reporters, very taken with it, tried moaning back, but they stopped when Mr. Gul put his fingers to his lips.

Friday night came and, once again, Mr. Gul slept on the lawn of the Baron's Cove Inn.

The big break in the situation came on Saturday morning about 11 a.m. Greta had been up and moaning for several hours. And now, in Trout Pond just across the road from

Cablevision Responds

Our Longtime Cable Monopoly Learns About Competition

By Dan Rattiner

Over the past twenty years, I have written many articles about Cablevision, the Long Island company based in Melville that for nineteen of those years held an effective monopoly on television watching both here on the East End and on the rest of Long Island. I'd write these articles beating Cablevision up — it is not hard to criticize a company that snuffs out or buys the competition to create a monopoly — and they would generally ignore me. Thus we got along.

Beginning about a year ago, however, Cablevision developed a serious competitor with DirecTV. Cablevision could bring the cables with their many channels to your house. DirecTV could get you even more channels through a small satellite dish you'd attach to your roof.

In fact, one year ago, Cablevision was having such difficulty with this situation you could almost feel sorry for them. DirecTV offered about 300 channels, all digital. Cablevision offered only about 70 channels and none of them were digital. Also, Cablevision charged more.

And as if that weren't bad enough, Cablevision was in deep financial trouble. Having over expanded into the recession by buying smaller companies that had nothing to do with cable TV, they now owned the troubled Wiz electronics store chain, the Clearview Cinema movie theater chain and a failing cable phone system. With their main business also in disarray, they were losing $200 million dollars a year on a $2 billion revenue stream. Furthermore, they announced plans to launch a single satellite dish that could get them into the national satellite business — an idea that all financial analysts described as virtual suicide since Cablevision, which really is just a Long Island company, has only limited knowledge about how to compete with EchoStar and DirecTV, the two national satellite companies. There would be a $600 million investment. And in a down market, making this kind of investment was biting off far more than they could chew. Cablevision's stock tanked, going from $60 to $15. I personally took the opportunity, last June, to transfer my personal home TV service from Cablevision to DirecTV.

One year ago, Cablevision was having such difficulty with this situation you could almost feel sorry for them.

Oddly, however, I felt badly about doing that. What was I, a rat leaving a sinking ship? Though I never liked Cablevision's practices, the idea that they might be forced out of the cable TV arena bothered me. In one article, in addition to bashing them, I wrote that for the first time they were experiencing competition, and that they were doing what any monopoly would do under the circumstances, which was stand around flat footed and take a beating. I suggested they get out there and fight. As a result of this, for the first time in twenty years, I got a letter from Cablevision attacking me back, describing things they were doing to compete. I was taken aback. Perhaps Cablevision was coming to its senses in this dog-eat-dog world.

Well, now it's a year later, and though the jury is still out, Cablevision seems to be imaginatively getting itself back into the fray. They've stabilized their finances by selling a cable network, Bravo, to NBC for $1.2 billion, to stem losses. And they've waded in with an interactive system called iO (in-out), which has about 200 digital channels to add to the 80 or so channels that they continue to provide non-digitally. DirecTV does not have any interactive system. Furthermore, they've restructured their pricing to be about in line with DirecTVs. My read of this is that they are now about on a par with DirecTV as far as channels go. They still have some non-digital channels, which is a minus, but they have iO, which is a plus.

Furthermore, there is a distinct difference in the channels they are offering. With my DirecTV, I get lots of channels that I never heard of which, I shall state for the record, have very dubious content. Channels with very boring movies that nobody could possibly want to watch. Channels with basketball games between two midwestern college teams of no redeeming value. There is an absurdly bad channel where some old lady talks about sex without any of the joie de vivre of Dr. Ruth. But there are a few gems. On DirecTV you get the BBC World Service and you get Sundance in addition to the Independent Film Channel, which is on both services.

On the other side, Cablevision has channels of considerable local interest. There is the Weather Channel with a sharp focus on the East End. There is the local broadcasting station with townwide programming. In East Hampton there is LTV, which may well have some of the finest local programming in the nation. And there are more familiar favorites. There is News 12 Long Island, there is the MSG (Madison Square Garden) channel, there is WVVH Southampton and WLNY Riverhead. Also included in their competitively priced packages, Cablevision now offers about 40 premium movie channels (HBO, Starz, Showtime, Cinemax) while DirecTV only offers about 30.

In my opinion, after having done this study comparing the two systems, I've decided that if you are a New Yorker with little interest in East End programming, you are better off with DirecTV. If you want some East End flavor in your 300 channels, though, go with Cablevision.

Cablevision is indeed rising to meet the challenge of its (belatedly discovered) competition. They're selling off their movie theater chain and have closed both the WIZ and their phone service to stay more focused on the business at hand. They are also, foolhardy as it might seem on the surface, continuing with their plan to launch a satellite this spring. It's a daring thought and a chance to turn a $2 billion company into a $20 billion company. And what if it fails? There's still this satellite up there worth a whole lot. They could get much of their money out of the venture by selling it. Also, there is a bubbling mix of players involved in buying or selling pieces or all of the two major satellite companies, including News Corp's Rupert Murdoch, SBC (an international phone company), and Hughes Electronics, besides DirecTV and Echostar themselves. Cablevision could find itself fitting in there somewhere. Cablevision stock, by the way, has drifted up toward $20.

Anyway, there are still some nasty things to consider. When Cablevision bought Madison Square Garden and its sports teams they also got the Rockettes of Radio City Music Hall, a national icon. They treated them pretty shabbily by cutting their pay and tenure, in my view. Also, Cablevision still has not come to terms with the fact that they have lost the rights to the New York Yankees and the New Jersey Nets to the YES network, although they have made a one year temporary arrangement with YES to run the Yankee and Nets games, if you wish to spend a few dollars a month extra. Many sports fans switched over to DirecTV to get YES and its terrific programming. I believe the loss of subscribers admitted by Cablevision is about 60,000 out of their 2,000,000 customer base. They should cut a permanent deal with YES and pay what it costs.

When you've been doing unto others, you get done unto sometimes. Business in America sometimes is that way and nobody knows it better than Cablevision. •

$100 Million Heist

More Diamonds Than Can Be Dealt With Dooms Robbers

By Dan Rattiner

There are four diamond centers in the world. They are in Manhattan, Antwerp, Tel Aviv, and Mumbai, India. Each of them occupies a very small section of the city they are in. In Manhattan, the diamond center is one block on 47th Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. Along this stretch there are about a hundred firms that buy and sell diamonds. Many of them have been doing so for over a hundred years in the same location.

Until three weeks ago, it is fair to say that nobody every really knew the value of the diamonds that were held in these four districts. In each of them, the valuables were kept in individual underground vaults assigned one to a firm. People would know what THEY had, not what EVERYBODY had.

> There had been about $160 million worth of diamonds... But the thieves, in their haste, made off with only $100 million...

These vaults were guarded by dozens of security people and overhead cameras. Each vault had a key. At the heavy steel door that opened into where the vaults were, there was a combination lock that only the guard knew the numbers to. Witnesses signed everyone in and out. Everybody wore an identification tag. Nothing had ever gone wrong.

Until three weeks ago when somebody cleaned out all the diamonds in the Antwerp center. There had been about $160 million worth of diamonds in the Antwerp diamond district. But the thieves, in their haste, made off with only $100 million because they spilled diamonds all over the place as they shoved them into canvas bags. Also, they opened only 123 of the 160 vaults. So you have to extrapolate to get to the full value of $160 million.

In any case, this heist is the biggest robbery in the history of the world. It is bigger than the Brinks Bank Robbery in England two generations ago. And it is bigger than the $40 million heist in Turin two years ago. It was also the height of simplicity. No drills, no dynamite, no bribes. The four perpetrators just walked right in. Here is how they did it.

Three years ago, a man with a jewelry store in Turin, Italy, somebody nobody had ever heard of, rented an office on the second floor of a building in the Antwerp Diamond District. His name was Leonardo Notarbartolo, and he signed a lease on behalf of a fictitious firm. He made the necessary payments. And he was assigned a vault in the sub-basement, two stories down, in the regular way. He was told the vault area was accessible by elevator from the ground floor or by an entrance to the parking garage two stories down. They gave him a key to his vault. He began conducting business.

Few people in the district noticed Notarbartolo. It was not unusual for a diamond firm to keep to itself, managing the affairs of its clients in Angola or Argentina or some other far off place. People were seen coming and going from Notarbartolo's office. He was doing something.

In fact, what Notarbartolo and his associates were doing was figuring out every single detail of how the Antwerp Diamond District worked. They were in no hurry. The value of what they planned to do would make anybody's hair stand on end. It might take months or years. It might take decades. When they were ready to move, they would.

The goals of Notarbartolo, another Italian named Antonino Falletti, his Dutch wife Judith Zwiep, and Notarbartolo's wife Adriana Crudo, were these.

1. Since the guards turn their backs after they

Economics?

Selling Watches For $5 On Manhattan Street Corners

By Dan Rattiner

I have studied economics in my life. And there is something I do not understand. It is the guys on the street corners of New York who, fully licensed, sell wristwatches for five dollars. They seem very happy about the transactions.

"Wristwatches, five dollars," they say. "Hey you. All wristwatches five dollars."

People gather around, skeptical. What's wrong with these wristwatches? They are, in fact, designer wristwatches. Or knock offs of designer wristwatches. Do they work? Yes they work. They are very beautiful, in their original designer cases with the fuzzy felt coverings, all royal red or ink jet black with the designer logos in gold on them, the watches still wrapped in clear plastic. Some of them have original price tags on them. One hundred and forty-five dollars.

There are three economic explanations for this situation and absolutely none of them make any sense.

People offer them three dollars. They do not budge. They scoff. These are five-dollar watches.

Now there are three economic explanations for this situation and absolutely none of them make any sense.

The first is, of course, that the watches are knock offs and fall off the back of a truck — that is, somebody is delivering big boxes of them somewhere and not all of the boxes make it to their destination. The watches therefore were got free.

But they were not free. Somebody has got to, being careful to look out for the law, take these boxes to someplace, probably in Queens, and store them in a warehouse. Then somebody has to guard the warehouse, and somebody has to pay to heat the warehouse and pay the electric bill. Somewhere in here there has got to be somebody who runs this operation, who makes out with it. He pays the guy who brings in the boxes. He pays the warehouse guard. He pays the license fees to the mayor for those tags they wear around their necks. He has this whole army of guys he has to assemble every morning each of whom has to be paid for the day, whether they sell any watches or not, whether it's broiling hot in the summertime or freezing cold in the wintertime. They have to take suitcases of watches and folding tables on the subway, or they have to be driven to their destinations in vans manned by drivers. I've just described maybe forty people and ten vehicles involved here. The guys set up on street corners. Often there are two guys. I've bought watches from them. I've noted how often they make a sale. Maybe five watches an hour.

"Okay, here are your watches for the day. You got twenty of them. Every time you sell one of them, you get a whole dollar. That's twenty percent. Don't come back with either the money or the watches and I turn you in to the immigration people."

"Oh boy, I can't wait to get out there," this man says. "My wife and kids will be so happy. I'll even be able to send money back to my native country."

There is no way anybody is going to make any money this way. Which leads us to explanation two. The watches are broken, either fire damaged or made wrong and have had to be thrown out. The guy who runs this operation is PAID to haul these broken watches off.

But the watches are not broken. I have one right here. Have had it for a year. It runs just fine.

Let me tell you about this five-dollar watch. It has a leather band (stamped GENUINE LEATHER in gold letters on the inside of the band), a round, wafer-thin gold-plated designer case with a stainless steel back, a quartz movement inside made in Japan, a white face with gold raised markers to indicate the hours, one hand that ticks off the seconds in a soldierly fashion, a minute and hour hand that keep time accurately and a flat, clear plastic, unbreakable cover. It is a beautiful thing — people have complimented me on it — and it says it is water resistant and bears the logo Q&Q inside which, though I have never heard of them, I believe to be the logo of a prestigious watch maker.

In other words, hundreds of people have been involved in making what is in fact a perfectly good watch. There are designers, manufacturers, packagers, marketers, big tankers crossing the ocean, longshoremen, even miners digging raw materials out of the ground somewhere, shipping stuff off to steel mills — I could go on and on. And somehow, I am supposed to believe that some guys can stand on a street corner selling these things for five bucks and everybody makes money. I don't get it.

Which leads me to the third explanation of all this, which DOES make sense, though certainly not economic sense, and that is that somewhere, high up in a tall building in the offices of a major fashion designer in Milan, somebody got this idea to sell one hundred and forty-five dollar watches for five bucks each on Fifth Avenue.

"Think of it as a marketing tool, chief. Sure we lose money. But we're talking New York, the center of the world. We make it here, we make it anywhere."

The chief, a slim Italian with a silk tie and a three-day growth of beard, grumbles something unintelligible to an aide and then nods. Everybody scurries off.

I don't know. Maybe, somehow, each of these individual watches is made by hand in some faraway country where everybody lives on fifty dollars a year. There's a woman in a shack, sitting on the dirt floor cross-legged, the kids running around, who, using little tiny steel tools, makes five of these a day from scratch and they pay her a penny apiece. There's also a seven-year-old is out back dyeing fuzzy felt royal red in a wooden vat. •

Who's Here

By Dan Rattiner

Henry Scholder, a Wall Street man well known in the Hamptons community as a patron of the arts, has written a novel called The Honorable Correspondent, which is about the war in Iraq. It can be ordered now from Amazon.com or barnesandnoble.com, and the hardcover will be shipped to you in May.

Henry Scholder
Author

How can such a book be available, as it was, even before the current war broke out? It is not about the current war, but about the war between Iraq and Iran twenty years ago, in which the United States sided with Saddam Hussein and in which Hussein used chemical weapons against the Iranians.

"I've been working on this book for many years," Scholder told me over lunch the other day. "It looked for awhile like Knopf would publish it. That was back in 1995. But the word came down that Middle Eastern books don't sell. So in the end they turned it away."

Scholder smiled. Knopf was living to rue the day.

Scholder knows all about the Middle East. Born just after the Second World War in the Papal City of Ancona, Italy, he was taken to Israel at the age of one where he lived in a suburb of Tel Aviv until he was 13. His father, a building contractor, was exempt from military service in Israel because of war wounds incurred during World War II. Both he and his wife, Henry's mother, were Holocaust survivors. They met and married after the war in a refugee camp. Henry's birth soon followed. In 1962, when Henry was 13, the family emigrated to New York.

Henry remembers the flight that took them from Israel to New York City.

"We flew SwissAir in a little Convair. From Tel Aviv there was a stop in Zurich. Then, crossing the Atlantic through a terrible storm, we were thrown off course and landed for awhile in Delaware. My first impression of America? It was coming in low near Wilmington. We flew over a cloverleaf on/off ramp and I saw all the cars. I was wildly excited. I had never seen anything like it before. But I had seen these cloverleafs on TV and in books. I actually felt reassured."

Henry said his father had brought the family to America because of the wars in Israel, the high taxes, and mostly because of the blunting of what his dad considered the Israeli socialist dream. From a kibbutz mentality, the country was evolving, as many countries were, to a country of millionaires and lower classes. There was, by 1962, disproportionate wealth in the country. Henry's father had strong feelings about that.

> "Between the governed and those they empower to govern them, there is an implicit, unspoken arrangement — the governed just want to keep their lifestyle."

Henry hit the ground running. He finished junior high and attended the Samuel J. Tilden High School in Brooklyn, then Brooklyn College, where he took classes at night while he worked as an orders clerk on Wall Street during the day.

He got married at 21, but it only lasted a few years. At the age of 24, he was working at Merrill Lynch on the newly founded Institutional Trading desk when Sam Hunter called him into his office and told him he had been selected to go to Europe to found offices for Merrill Lynch for a new service for Europeans. European institutions could, by going to Merrill Lynch before the American market opened, invest knowledgeably in American securities. The time change would allow it. 9 a.m. in New York was 3 p.m. in Europe. Prior to 3 p.m., European investors had an opportunity others didn't. Another Merrill Lynch employee, from San Francisco, flew over to join Henry and teach option trading to the Europeans. Four years later Henry was still there, the operation a huge success. He retired. He was 28 years old.

"I took a house for a year in Bridgehampton," he told me, "sharing the rent with three painters, Gregg Botts, Sigrid Burton and Francis Heaney. They painted, I wrote. We went surfing during the day, partied at night. I decided I would write the great American novel, which would be about my family. Mistake. I never finished it. But I fell in love with writing."

At the end of the year, Scholder took a loft in what is now TriBeca. He still came out to the Hamptons, but in the summertime. And he traveled.

"I love traveling. There is a German word, zitzfleisch, which refers to the part of your ass that lets you sit in one place for long periods of time. I was the exact opposite. I was restless. I wanted to be surprised, overwhelmed. I crisscrossed the planet."

"What's your favorite place?" I asked.

"New Zealand," he said. "Second is the Sea of Galilee."

Scholder has returned to Wall Street for four and five years at a time, working as an investment banker one time and as a partner in a small hedge fund at another time, but for the most part he has traveled, rented in the Hamptons (where ten years ago he married gallery owner Renee Fotouhi), and recharged at his TriBeca loft.

"Boy has that place changed," he said. "When I first got there, we had one restaurant, Dave's Cafe at Broadway and Canal, where we would all go for fresh bagels at three in the morning. Now it is restaurant row with some of the best dining experiences in the world."

In the late 1980s, Scholder became fascinated with the little known Iraq-Iran War.

"I could not fathom how this war happened, and how the major powers let it go on for eight years. This was a huge war. Somewhere between a million and a million and a half people died. The Iranians used boys for suicide assaults. The Iraqis attacked with chemicals and gas. Land changed hands a few yards at a time. It was like World War I. The battle line barely moved. And today, there are still prisoners of war incarcerated on both sides, taken in at age 18 now in their 40s and have lived their whole lives in the shadow of this war and its aftermath.

"After researching this war for my book, what I found out was that from the perspective of the Americans, the Russians, and the French, this was the perfect situation. Let them kill each other. The Russians, Americans and French backed the Iraqis, providing weapons and bombs in exchange for Iraqi oil. Everyone was getting rich."

In 1998, Scholder started writing The Honorable Correspondent.

"It took me five years to complete. I used a laptop. I wrote it in cities and towns all over the world. In the Caribbean, in Greece, Italy, Israel, Water Mill, East Hampton."

Oddly, Scholder has never been to Baghdad. But he has been to Tehran.

"It came about in 1974 when I was working at Merrill Lynch and consulting at the Beirut office. There was a civil war going on at that time in Lebanon. Half the country is Muslim, the other half Maronite Christian. In the Beirut office, we had a closed circuit video system hooking us up to other regional Merrill Lynch offices. Everyone could see the items passed along on the system. From Paris, a secretary sent me a memo asking if my Israeli citizenship status was up to date. Almost immediately a Maronite member of the firm came over and said if he were me he'd take the first plane out. I took a cab to the airport. The first plane went to Tehran. This was during the time of the shah, when Iran was our friend."

Henry described his book. An honorable correspondent, he said, is a French spy, a patriot, who works for the government without pay. He could be an art gallery dealer, a journalist, a businessman. The honorable correspondent in this book is a businessman who reports to a corrupt French counter-intelligence chief named Gaspar. Gaspar, for his own reasons, wants to make as much money as possible for France. He is authorizing arms purchases and deliveries for Iraq. But also for Iran. The plot unfolds.

"I interviewed a Greek arms dealer for this book, I interviewed a French foreign ministry official. As you know, the French recently blocked us at the U. N. There is a reason for it. France is let a known jeweler into the vault area, use wax molds to make wax key forms from all the vaults in the basement.

2. Without being noticed, find a way to watch the guard turn the dial on the combination lock to open the great steel door granting access to the vault.

3. Obtain discarded tapes that came from the video surveillance cameras.

4. Mark on a map the location of all wires leading away from the vaults to the automatic alarm system.

On Friday at 5 p.m., February 14, 2003, the vaults were closed for the weekend. Guards remained, monitoring all the video cameras, but inasmuch as the vaults were closed, they watched from a control center on the third floor.

That night, the four burglars dressed entirely in black and, wearing black masks and gloves, pulled up in a small Fiat getaway car to the door that led into the vestibule area outside the vault area two levels down in the parking garage. The car was parked there and the burglars, each with half a dozen canvas sacks, got out and went through the door. One of them carried, in a separate sack, a pair of scissors, a wire cutter, a roll of black fabric tape, fourteen video tapes with prior security video on them, marked to indicate the proper camera they belonged to, and the keys to all the vaults.

In the lobby, the wires to the alarm system were cut with the wire cutter by one of the burglars. Another burglar, carrying the video tapes, went from camera to camera, pressed stop and eject, pulled out the tapes, and immediately replaced them with the old video tapes. He pressed PLAY. He also covered the lens of the video cameras with the fabric tape.

After all this was done, one of the burglars carefully and slowly turned the combination lock, the giant steel door clanged open and they walked in.

At this point in the story, I'm sure you've realized that they caught these people weeks afterwards. That is how we know their names. What you may or may not know is that you have already been told the miscalculation that caused their downfall. Think it over. Now it will be revealed.

Inside the vault area, they used keys to open all the vaults, one after another, scooping up diamonds and jewelry and stuffing them into their sacks. There was a huge amount of this jewelry.

Mill Creek, the killer male was making himself known by stirring the waters and occasionally rising up, peering outward, honking and then splashing back down.

"He's looking for the outfall pipe," Mayor Pasta said.

"He can't see so good," the police chief said.

At exactly 12:07 p.m., the male appeared in Mill Creek for the first time. A lot of thrashing went on, then the male was seen going back into Trout Pond for a few minutes and then back through the outfall pipe for more.

Around two o'clock, the pair set out, with Gul jumping up and down clapping his hands on the shore in delight. The eels went out into Noyack Bay side by side, then, with all the boats accompanying them and the choppers flying overhead, went around to the north side of Shelter Island, passing between the Island and Greenport where people, many with cameras, had assembled on the shore, finally swimming at about fourteen knots from Orient Point to Plum Island and out to sea. They were chattering away and, obviously, headed for Ecuador.

The fishing boat they pulled down, it turned out, was the GULL DARN, registered to Frank Hanks, 58, of Bay Shore. Hanks was with two friends, Ace Goodstein of Patchogue, 61, and Frank Banana of Patchogue, 48. All apparently perished, though no trace of Mr. Banana has been found.

As for the happy couple, a tag on the forward dorsal fin of Greta indicates that, as expected, they turned south once they got out past Plum Island and Montauk Point. Around 4:32, however, aircraft accompanying the pair say they saw a great thrashing in the ocean after which the two eels separated and went different ways. An American warship nearby, headed for the Persian Gulf, reported what sounded like loud arguing going on at very loud volume at the reported longitude and latitude where the aircraft were reporting the thrashing. The warship fired three cannonades toward the site from its six forward sixteen-inch guns, then steamed on.

At last report, filed on Wednesday, Greta was moving slowly, and apparently sadly, off the coast of Bermuda heading toward Ecuador. The killer male's whereabouts are now unknown.

At least he's not coming back here. •

The Sheltered Islander

By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #240

Burial at Sea

"American Idol," "The Bachelor," "Nashville Star," "Joe Millionaire" — I am fascinated by this new genre of television shows. "Joe Millionaire" was the most amazing so far. A goofy looking construction worker/underwear model, cons 30 women into debasing themselves on TV trying to convince the guy that the money doesn't matter. Most people in America think he chose Zora because she was sweet and quiet. I know better. He chose her because she was the biggest wimp in the bunch and probably the only one who wouldn't depart his teeth from his head upon learning — on camera — that the whole thing was a lie! Joe wasn't an idiot with 50 million dollars — he was an idiot with 50 dollars.

I tried to imagine how this show would fare on Shelter Island. Thirty eligible island women moving into a mansion in Dering Harbor with a Joe Millionaire from off island. Dinners at the Ram's Head Inn, lunches at the Chequit, evenings at the Yacht Club as he slowly thins the herd.

The problems would start almost right away. First off, everyone is related to someone on island. When Joe cast off the first eight girls, he'd get the crap beat out of him by about twenty brothers. Not so much because they'd be upset that their sisters were rejected, but because it terminated their opportunity to have a sister with some serious money who could give them a loan for a boat.

During the second round of elimination, Joe would reject an additional five girls. On island, these five would get together with the first eight rejectees and they'd start plotting revenge. They'd get in contact with the girls still in the running and conspire to split the pot, whomever wins it. And why would the girls still in the running work with the rejectees? Because everybody knows somebody's secret, if you live on Shelter Island, you gradually get to know where all the bodies are buried.

Joe would have a difficult time taking his dates around the island horseback riding, golfing and such, because the island guys would be so irate at the fact that this jerk has women lined up and gets to pick and choose, they'd sabotage him at every opportunity. The waiters would slip ex-lax in his drinks, the horse handlers would bring him "Ole Blue" to ride, but it would actually be a horse named "Ole Napalm." The ferrymen would have him park his Rolls Royce in the center of the ferry surrounded by closely arranged old pick up trucks, the pilot would slam into the moorings and watch with evil glee as the Rolls slams back forth between work trucks. The liquor stores would promise to have 50 year old bottles of champagne ready for him, but if you peeled off the label, it would actually read, Clarks Kickapoo Joy Juice, made fresh this morning! Dock workers who looked after his yacht would loosen all the bolts on his yacht, and grease them. They would laugh till they rolled off the dock as Joe Millionaire sailed into the sunset holding a wheel, attached to nothing, in his hands and trying to look cool.

Ultimately, Joe would get down to one woman. On Shelter Island, that means he's pissed off 29 woman and their families, roughly 867 people. That puts him in with a very exclusive group on Shelter Island. At this point Joe should get a black truck, a few vicious dogs to guard it, and try to avoid anyone he owes money to.

If that's not bad enough, Joe's about to tell the woman he has chosen, that it's all been a big lie. He's really just a regular guy who sweats the bills, drinks Bud, and whose favorite sexual position is whatever can be done in a lazy-boy at half time.

After Joe has told the truth and had his laugh, he now has 30 women, and the entire Island infuriated at him. Joe would be a dead man because there's nowhere to hide and no ferry will help him escape. Unless he can walk on water, he's history. He would be found and would rapidly experience Island justice. The last words he would ever hear would before being thrown in the water, "Goodbye old chum..."

Heist

In scooping much of it up, pieces fell to the floor. All together, after about a half hour of rushing around and evaluating this and that piece of jewelry to determine which was worth taking and which not, each burglar had four big canvas sacks full of the stuff. They declared their heist over, dragged the sacks out the door and over to the Fiat.

The Fiat is a small car. It fit all four of the burglars driving into the parking garage, but it could not fit all four burglars and all the sacks. No matter how hard they tried, they always had one sack left over. Finally, they decided to just get out of there, all the burglars and all the sacks, with one sack hanging out the window held tightly by one of them. They'd head for Brussels.

They got out to the street, went up the ramp to the motorway that connects Antwerp with Brussels and it was at this point that the burglar holding the sack said to pull over for a minute because he could not hold onto the last sack for much longer.

By the side of the road, they panicked. They had one sack somewhere in the car that had no diamonds in it. They had to find it and throw that one out. They rummaged around, found the sack, and threw it into a garbage can there.

And that, on Monday afternoon, is what the police found when they scoured the neighborhood looking for clues. In it were all the recent video tapes they had pulled out, all the keys to the now empty vaults, various correspondences from and to Mr. Notarbartolo of this particular diamond wholesale company in the district and other incriminating evidence.

On Thursday, February 20, five days after the burglary, police arrested three of the burglars either at their homes or, in the case of Mr. Notarbartolo, in his office in the diamond district where he was acting as upset about the robbery as everybody else.

The four are being held in the Antwerp police station as this is written, but no diamonds have been found. Well, they did find one diamond. At the home of Notarbartolo, where they arrested his wife Adriana, a policeman, looking for clues, was vacuuming the rug when, inside the vacuum cleaner, he heard a thump. It is three carats and valued at $8,000.

In the next month or two, there will be a trial. Watch for it. Or read all about it. • still very economically close to Iraq. They may have earned between $60 and $90 billion selling to Iraq and Iran. During that earlier war, France took market share away from the Russians. They have kept it to this day. You know the Ayatollah Kohmeini lived in exile in France prior to the war and was RELEASED to Iran by France. Coincidence? You know the Iraqis nationalized the oil industry and threw out all foreign oil companies. Except one. Total. The French company. I have seen a photograph, taken in 1974, of a young Jacques Chirac standing next to a young Saddam Hussein, looking upwards and smiling as they tour the interior of a nuclear plant together. This is not coincidence.

10TH SPRING FLING

Text and Photos by Lise Visser

The Parrish Art Museum was transformed by the spirit of spring into a colorful festival of art, music, great food and dancing. A silent auction held many splendid works of art and objets. The background created by the children of Eastern Long Island in their 50th annual exhibit was overwhelmingly beautiful in this magical evening to herald the season in Southampton.

Cooperage Inn. Chefs Liamo and Hegeman carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Freshness of local ingredients evident in every bite, produce comes from neighboring farmstands. Inspired appetizers, topped by pan-seared fresh mozzarella over spinach with artichoke hearts and plum tomatoes. Homemade dressings enliven fresh salads, notably the house salad of greens, fruits, raisins and nuts. Superb steaks and pastas. Rigatoni ala vodka with pancetta, basil and sage, particularly noteworthy. Cornmeal encrusted Atlantic salmon attains a very high level. Excellent values include grilled double pork chops atop wild mushroom herb stuffing. Owner Jonathan Perkins' stylish country restaurant is a North Fork gem. Entrees $14-$30. Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 6/29/01). [B]

Fauna. A hip and elegant culinary gem. Co-owner and consulting chef Mark Mittelman's menu astutely incorporates Asian influences into superbly conceived New American dishes. Tuna sashimi shines as an appetizer, as does duck confit atop sautéed spinach with walnuts and dried cranberries. Try and find room for the butternut squash pot stickers. The all-star cast of entrees includes Southeast Asian steak salad, pan-roasted bourbon chicken and a Napoleon of roasted vegetables. Desserts rotate daily. Extensive wine list with sixteen local vineyards. Entrees $20-$26. Route 25, Aquebogue. 722-5813. (Trueman-Honey, 6/7/02). [A,F]

La Plage. Obscure geography, sensational cuisine. This sums up owner/chef Wayne Wadington's destination restaurant on Long Island Sound, north of the tiny village of Wading River. No expense spared in the acquisition of top ingredients. Complex recipes spell highly creative fusion cuisine: New American in heart, French in spirit. Many highlights include: Chilled lobster soup garnished with roe; salad of tart apples with bleu cheese, walnuts and mache; rare yellowfin tuna with homemade potato chips; caramelized jumbo sea scallops with snow crab fritter. Desserts are imaginative and exceptionally well executed. Entrees $17-$28. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00). [R,V]

Red Door. Red Alert! Stephan Mazzella, formerly of Lespinasse, has opened a fine new restaurant in Mattituck. His menu is quite versatile and his consistently tasty dishes excite the palate. Typically adventurous and successful is the pan-seared monkfish with a yellow tomato sauce and black olive purée topped by crispy fried leeks. Mazzella's treatment of fish epitomizes Greek and Italian-style preparation at its best. The appetizer of heirloom tomatoes with boccocini mozzarella and fresh basil and balsamic vinegar is a tomato dish for the ages. Innovative desserts, too. Entrees – $16–$28. 13560 Main Rd., Mattituck. 298-4800. (Bradbrook, 6/14/02). [E,N]

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry is an excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open 7 days 12-8. Route 48, Southold, 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01). [U]

The Seafood Barge. The North Fork restaurant for fish lovers. Owner/manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsey Flinn are as fanatical about results as Steinbrenner/Torre. Newly imported executive chef Michael Meehan updates the menu's standards and introduces several of his own specialties. Vichyssoise spiked with crab meat and basil oil was a rousing success. Marinated baby octopus with baby spinach was succulent and tender. As for the fish, the sushi appetizer continues to be stellar. The pan-seared striped bass with a red pepper broth is a revelation. Desserts are sensational. Excellent wine list, particularly local vintages. Entrees $24-$32. Port of Egypt Marina, Rt. 25, Southold. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 7/26/02). [M,S]

Sultan's Kitchen. At last, a good, authentic Eastern Mediterranean for the region. The emphasis is on Turkish cooking, one of the world's healthiest cuisines. The spacious dining room is non-descript, as this is a former pancake emporium; the subtleties are all in the flavoring of the food. Soups such as red lentil and tripe are spiced just right. The varied appetizers favor vegetarians while the main courses concentrate on lamb and chicken, often with delectable results. Turkish baklava and kadayif are exceptional finishing touches. Entrees $6.50-$15.95. 1077 Old Country Road, Riverhead. 369-9766. (Bradbrook, 8/9/02.)

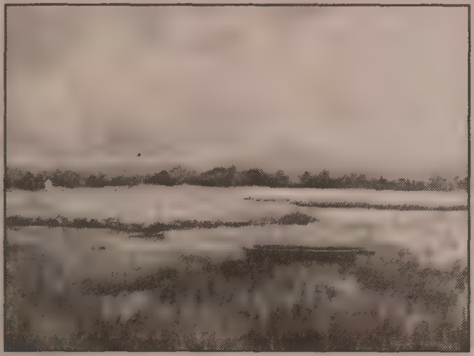
Fine And Preforming Arts On The North Fork

Big Event Of The Week



Capturing New Suffolk in Blue and Gold

Artist Isabelle Haran-Leonardi has been fascinated by nature her whole life. And after moving to the North Fork ten years ago, she fell in love with its unique light and landscape.

"Several times a week I travel down New Suffolk Avenue and am absolutely bowled over by the haunting loveliness of the place, especially the blue of the water and the sky, and the gold of 'empty' spaces filled with grasses," said Isabelle. "I also find the boats hidden in those grasses evocative of journeys not yet taken. They express to me the value of restorative time."

Isabelle's current show at Cecily's Love Lane Gallery features both acrylics from her "Blue and Gold" series depicting the estuaries of New Suffolk, as well as watercolor still lifes, a real "breath of spring." Through March at 80 Love Lane, Mattituck. Call 298-8610. Closed Sundays.

Spring Break At Palmer Vineyards

It's official: winter is over. The vineyards around our Cutchogue farmhouse, though beautiful in their white winter coats, are bustling with activity as vines and rows are readied for bud break. And with the buds comes a most delightful right of passage: the uncorking of more lighthearted wines to go with the simpler fare we now find ourselves craving.

Located at the northern gateway to Long Island wine country, Palmer Vineyards on Sound Avenue in Aquebogue is known for its classically structured wines. Winemaker Tom Drozd is one of the East End's most knowledgeable in terms of "terroir" – the overall environment in which a given varietal, such as Chardonnay, will grow.

My friend John Ross and I recently tried four of Palmer's current offerings, and were especially delighted by the 2001 White Riesling. The wine has nice floral aromas and a welcome dry finish. It was wonderful with John's cold mussels tossed with fresh ginger and lime. At the winery, $13.99.

Tops on my list was the 2001 Sauvignon Blanc, a varietal that is increasing in popularity here on the North Fork. Classic characteristics of grapefruit and grassiness are abundant and were perfect paired with lemon-splashed little necks fresh from Mattituck Creek. $12.99 at the winery.

Palmer has re-released its 1997 Select Reserve Red, a meritage blend with a beautiful deep red color and lots of dark fruit. Brisk tannins stand right up to game – we sampled it with duck confit. At the winery only, $24.99.

And number four? Coming soon: a column devoted to lush, late harvest lovelies, such as Palmer's 2001 Select Harvest Gewürztraminer. Remember sipping the nectar of honeysuckle flowers as a child? This is the adult version… Cheers.

Away At School...

By David Lion Rattiner

Fighter Pilot

For Spring break, my Dad and I decided that we would take a trip to San Francisco to visit my sister Maya who lives there. Since my Dad is in Long Island and I am in Boston, we decided to take different flights.

This was not the first time I was going to be traveling by myself. However, it was the first time that I was going to be traveling for such a long time in an airplane by myself. According to my itinerary, to get to San Francisco from Boston I was going to have to fly from Boston to Newark. From there I was going to fly into Cinncinatti, where I was going to have to change flights again and fly to San Francisco. The flight from Boston left on a Saturday morning at 10:30 a.m. This basically meant that on a Saturday morning I was going to have to get up at 7:30 a.m. in order to get to the airport two hours before the flight. The scheduled landing time into San Francisco was 6:30 p.m. Pacific time. In other words it was going to be a long day.

After waking up in my usual dazed and confused demeanor, I grabbed some clothes and a toothbrush, shoved them in a duffel bag and headed out the door. Through sheer luck I figured out the train route to the airport. After being frisked and checked and metal detected, I made it to the gate.

I now had two hours to sit and wait at the gate before my flight took off. I sat down at a seat and looked out at all of the airplanes. Suddenly it just hit me how fantastically awesome the whole airport and airplane thing is. I mean, think about it. Here is a machine that can fly through the air at five hundred miles per hour, hurdle across the earth like a bat out of hell, then comfortably land at some other airport thousands of miles away. It can even transport you into the future a couple of hours.

I picked up The New York Times and started reading an article about some disease in China that is running rampant. A woman in Canada even got sick. There was a quote from a spokeswoman for the Toronto Board of Health whose name is Mary Margaret Crapper. I usually don't make fun of names, but I thought that this was funny and laughed out loud.

A woman, probably in her late forties, turned to me and said in an Irish accent, "I haven't got that far in the paper, what's so funny?"

Embarrassed I showed her the name in the article. She then laughed out loud as well. "It is nice to see that someone shares my sense of humor," I said.

The woman then started to talk to me a bit about how news these days has been so bad and that she dreads picking up the newspaper. I wanted to change the subject.

"Aren't planes an amazing thing?" I asked her.

The woman's eyes lit up. "My son actually flies for Delta. He used to be a pilot for the Navy. He flew F-18's and everything," she responded excitedly.

"That's amazing! How did he do that? You have to be so fast and smart and perfect to fly those jets. Man your son must have the life," I said.

"He really likes it. He always wanted to be a pilot and fly those jets ever since he was a little kid. When he was in high school he applied to the Naval Academy and got accepted. He flew for the Navy, now he works for Delta."

I could not believe this story. I thought it was so far fetched to become a fighter pilot. I knew people actually did it, but it never really hit me that they were regular people. "He must like being an airline pilot," I said.

"Actually he'd much rather still be flying fighter jets. Once you do that, everything else seems kind of boring. You ever think about becoming a pilot?" she asked.

I started thinking about that. I would love being a fighter pilot. The action and adventure would be so amazing. I was imagining myself inside one of those jets that you see in the movies. I would be off on a mission of great importance. Then I started to get hungry and wondered if there would be any food on the plane. Then I remembered that food on airplanes is terrible. It is always cold in the middle and they never give you enough to eat. Then I realized that there wouldn't be any food in a fighter jet. I read somewhere that these guys go on missions that are really long.

"You have to go on really long missions when you are a fighter jet right?" I asked my new friend.

"Oh yes. My son has flown more than twelve hours straight," she replied.

"I don't think that I would make such a great fighter pilot," I said.

Greenside Golf Academy: Shaping Your Swing For Spring

Spring may be just around the corner (we hope), which conjures up all our favorite outdoor activities. The sounds of the seasonal changes may include birdies chirping the rites of spring, but on many people's minds is a different type of birdie sound. That is, the sheer elation of a straight drive down the fairway and a perfectly executed putt for that birdie glow that permits you to stride proudly to the next tee. Every golfer knows that practice is required to get into tip-top spring golf form after a long and snowy winter. Along with practice though, shedding a few of those extra pounds gained during the winter solstice, will help to increase flexibility and strengthen one's body for the golf season ahead.

Combining practice and fitness is the specialty of John Hobbin's sleek new Greenside Academy at the Sports Club/LA in Manhattan. Golf in Manhattan? It doesn't seem possible, but a recent visit to the academy unveiled a state-of-the-art instruction facility located within the attractive setting of Sports Club/LA. New technology and training know-how are helping so many athletes these days – get in line golfers, you are no different.

Greenside Academy offers pro advice that suits the needs of all levels of golfers. Instruction is designed to address swing mechanics and the physical needs of strengthening and increased flexibility. Golf is a physically demanding sport as demonstrated by the emphasis that many of today's top professionals place on conditioning. At Greenside, the mechanics of a correct golf swing are combined with total fitness to create functional body movements, strength and flexibility. While there are no guarantees that this will get you competing on the pro tour, the combination of golf instruction with the benefits of improved fitness will improve those birdie chances this spring.

The golf sessions at Greenside include the use of high-speed digital cameras that document a frame-by-frame view of your golf swing. An analysis of each student's swing with diagnostic software graphically records your swing in stop-action, slow motion and printed images. Your golf swing can be compared with the world's leading male and female players on a split screen as you work at refining your game.

Greenside Academy's location in the posh Sports Club/LA atmosphere, offers the combination of professional golf instruction with a complete fitness center equipped with every type of work-out machine imaginable, luxury amenities and personal trainers who can tailor your fitness program to enhance core strength and body flexibility. While it may require carving out some time from one's busy schedule, the rewards of being in better shape and improving your golf swing will be worth the effort.

John Hobbin's has been a teaching professional for 25 years, including years running schools for Golf Digest, and his expertise shapes sessions at the Academy from the introductory evaluation through his personalized lessons. There are also two or four person golf clinics available for those who want a buddy, spouse or steady foursome with similar ability to improve their golf skills. Most of the golf packages that John specifically designs for his students include sessions away from the facility at an outdoor range on Randall's Island to see actual ball flight.

So before you step out on the first tee, or even after you have had the chance to get in that first round of early spring golf, consider visiting Greenside Golf Academy. The atmosphere will get you on track to restoring your golf swing to mid-season form while encouraging a workout to put more bounce in your step.

As I was ending my visit with John, I began to hear the sounds of birdies (and cabs) chirping the rapid approach of spring and I knew I had come to the right place to tee up for the golf season ahead.

–Marty Romm

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

GUILD HALL MEMBERS SHOW

If the student art exhibits at Guild Hall and the Parrish are this critic's two favorite displays, the Annual Members Show runs a close second, especially welcomed this year with Christine Strassfield's return as Guild Hall's curator. While we heard that several artists did not participate because there was an entrance fee (a bone of contention last year as well), apparently this did not harm the exhibit's quality. (Personally, we'd do away with the decision to ask for a fee.)

This year's choice of twenty-nine Honorable Mention winners (instead of the usual three or four), however, was a good decision. Aesthetically speaking, so too was the decision process required from hanging this kind of presentation, which assistant curator Farrin Cary carried off beautifully.

Hans Vande Bovenkamp and Zack

About the actual art, there are some downsides associated with an exhibit of this scope. For example, we can't help but be attracted to some works while admittedly missing worthwhile pieces along the way. The art critic's rationale is lame at best: "All I have space for is merely mentioning an artist's endeavor." Yours truly also falls prey to such an excuse and can't do what is usually the case: interpret meaning and context.

Even so, we'll give it a go regarding interpretation/themes while also adhering to the awful habit of missing many effective works. Perhaps it's called selective perception, proving that decision-making based on limitations rests with the curator as well as the critic and even the artist.

For composition in monochromatic tones, we liked Elisca Jeansonne's collage and Kate Register's charcoal. Figuratively speaking (pardon the pun), we were drawn to Miriam Schapiro's busy patterned design, addressing personal memories, and Liz Gribin's more minimal female image. Marilyn Church's females are both fully embodied, like Ms. Schapiro's piece, and minimal, an ambiguous narrative responsible for the latter quality. Karen Abato's naked figure also tells a subtle story: ditto for Bob Markell's nude figures executed in three parts. Bill King's ballet dancer is a figure of a different sort, where the "plot" is character driven.

Matters of myth play an essential part in several works, where figures and setting are equal. Consider Jennifer Cross' incongruent balloon vendor, an extension of her previous works featuring beach scenes bordering on suggested surrealism. Consider, too, Michael Knigin's "Perfect Lady, a reference to the mysterious world of dance and Sheila Isham's mythic beast. Less obvious are Mary Twomey McKenna's "Notes From Florence," Carol Hunt's computer generated images and Hans Vande Bovenkamp's sculpture, a work that represents all things to all men.

HONORING THE ARTIST: RICK REASON

While the expression, "A dog is Man's best friend," is a cliche, we'd like to reverse it, suggesting, instead, that "Man is a dog's best friend." The twist seems particularly applicable to East Northport artist Rick Reason whose canine portraits are unique.

Everyone, it seems, benefits by Mr. Reason's interest in dogs. Consider, for example, that a poster of his dogs and cats reminds owners to take their animals to the vets. And two dogs Mr. Reason rescued from the pound certainly benefited by his good deed. He has had one of them, Arthur, for fourteen years now.

Mr. Reason didn't always have a pet, even though he grew up in the farming community of Buffalo Prairie, Illinois. "I didn't really bond with a dog until I met my future wife and her pet, Theresa, when they were living in Brooklyn," Mr. Reason explains. "The experience was a real eye opener; I realized what dogs could mean to people."

Dogs didn't always figure in Mr. Reason's career either. He went to the University of Iowa where he obtained a degree in painting. (He says he's been an artist "as long as I can remember," recalling that his mother gave him crayons and paper to get him out of her hair.)

When he graduated, Mr. Reason was just another starving artist, when lo and behold, Hollywood called.

"A Hollywood studio called my school and asked if they could suggest a student, Mr. Reason continues. "Luckily, I was recommended; I spent two years in California, doing storyboards for car commercials." Resisting the lure of computer generated imagery, Mr. Reason moved to New York City where he found storyboarding positions with HBO, Lifetime TV and MTV (including a video for Cindy Lauper).

Yet Mr. Reason left broadcasting to continue with his painting, stating that production work did not give people a chance to see his own art. Combining his love of dogs and art became Mr. Reason's goal, especially when Arthur entered his life.

"I'm so gratified when I do portraits of dogs," he says with enthusiasm. "Often the work becomes a family heirloom, I suppose because I try and capture each dog's personality."

Lest we think that Mr. Reason only paints dogs, we ask him about the most unusual animal he's ever done. "I once did a potbelly pig," he answers without hesitation. "He was riding in a boat, sitting in the middle of cherry tomatoes and carrots."

Even so, dogs are still Mr. Reason's favorite animals to paint.

–Marion Wolberg Weiss

All of the Irish eyes of Long Island will be at the Montauk Parade this weekend, I guarantee it. They will be smiling, and perhaps a little bit glazed. This is the parade of the year. Forget about the one in Manhattan. Montauk knows how to party. While there you must check out O' Murphy's truly Irish pub. You won't miss it, just follow the crowd. The Shagwong on Main Street is another great place to go. Dance to the music, mingle with happy people, enjoy life. After the parade passes you by head on over to catch the sunset at the Montauket. It will be a beautiful end to an amazing day. You really should not miss this event. It's fun for the whole family. There are always spectacular floats and fire trucks from all over the island. Wear green, red, white and blue and show your spirit.

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE PROUDLY PRESENTS
THE DAN'S PAPERS THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE FILM FESTIVAL

Featuring films that either take place on Long Island or were filmed here.

2 PM Saturday, March 29 – CITY BY THE SEA – Long Beach co-stars with Robert DeNiro and Francis McDormand in a powerful drama of a dedicated detective whose son is wanted for murder. James Franco's performance as the son is as powerful as this riveting tale.

2 PM Saturday, April 26 – GARBO TALKS – Sidney Lumet directs other Hamptonites in a charming and poignant story. A dutiful son, Ron Silver goes about fulfilling his mother's wish to meet Greta Garbo. Ann Bancroft, as the tough mom, is a trip. The meeting in the closing scene features the fab Betty Comden. Darn, we gave away the ending.

2 PM Saturday, May 3 – A SHOCK TO THE SYSTEM – Michael Caine stars, yet again, in "movies made here"; as in so many others he's a bit naughty. Here he realizes how easy it is to get ahead in the ad business…kill off people in your way. A shady dark comedy of the greedy 80's and 90's, it puts Elizabeth McGovern and Swoosie Kurtz in harm's way with giggles.

2 PM Saturday, May 10 – THE WOODY ALLEN PROJECT – A musical jaunt in Europe and back home to visit his mom and dad here on the Island. Pop thought Wood should have been a druggist. His wife, Soon Yi, has to put up with Woody's kvetching on tour and thinks maybe Daddy knew best. The music put out by Woody's band is so toe-tapping happy, you'd never know he's such a sourpuss.

Hosted by Guy De Fraumeni,
Hollywood Film Critic and
Oscar and Film Festival Movie Judge
Assisted by Sarah Halsey.

Tears of The Sun & Irrevérsible

My early, scrappy and awfully memorable adventures in the feisty film trade includes a delicious stint with Sophia Loren that straddled New York and Southern Italy. Especially delicious because, wherever she was, she had to make her own pasta. This is serious stuff. It was important to have the real thing. A real meal, not some half-baked, fake whatever. Two new features, Tears of the Sun and, Irrevérsible brought this back from the past, as both films star, Monica Bellucci, an Italian actress and, she's immersed in a deep pot of hot water in both films. Dolorosamente, she stirs terribly in the steamy boil of faux idealism in Tears of the Sun, a suffering, fight-back, poor imitation of a portentous war (er, I should say, pre-emptive intervention) movie, wherein the topical grimness is as bogus, starchy-slimy as four cans of Franco-American macaroni. Irrevérsible, however, may be as hard to take as a smack in the teeth. No al dente treat, it is a violent, shocking and prodigious play-back, in reverse, of anger, lust and love, rape and guilt and revenge – not necessarily in that order. Of Ms. Bellucci's demanding and questionable role and, her performance as a victim of sexual violation, it can best be described as being much braver than Bruce Willis' Navy Seals lieutenant who decides to countermand orders and with a small detachment of like-minded men, save doctor Bellucci and all her native patients from a rebel army of butchers in the thick, hot jungles of Nigeria.

I hope someone in the production company of Tears bothered to inform Nigeria that they were the movie's choice location for genocide, ethnic turmoil and civil war. It's not reported there, at least, not right now, however, this movie might prompt bloody destruction. Oh, yes, the film was shot in Hawaii. Placing the action in Nigeria is typical of the reckless tenor of Tears, even as it attempts to be holy and peace loving. Like Rambo, Willis' officer takes matters into his own hands and single-mindedly, with the blood of others, of course, and the help of some Navy jets' ability to "toast 'em." This business of Willis' unilateral personal declaration of war and defying rules of engagement (that permit only fighting in self-defense) to save oppressed people, sounds not just like Rambo, but the White House, as well. It's this one-sidedness about Willis and his men's decision so early in the film – no doubts, no arguments, no thought, let's do it! That takes it out of the arena of serious combat films of Oliver Stone or Coppola. Tears of the Sun makes the death and destruction of war all too easy. As easy as Ms. Bellucci's open-shirted MD. can turn-on and turn-around Lt. Willis.

I worry about praising, Irrevérsible. For one thing, it's a French film and, the cry, now is, "After Iraq, it's Chirac!" And it is devastatingly real. It's amazing techniques, wielded like a sharp axe by its' auteur, Gaspar Noe, have you experience, up-front and unremittingly, the demons of lurid sex and unchained assaults on sensibility. This film is not for those of us who avert our eyes from harsh reality and dark soulless thoughts. Noe's faults of submission are compellingly overridden by the film's strength of unmasking truths – the ones that are hidden behind the faked orgasms of delight that sign all exploitation movies. Tears of the Sun is in that exploiting category. Irrevérsible terrifies you with the realization that you might be the victim behind the mask enjoying it.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/ writer/ director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmy's and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

Not only is the weather warming to an absolutely balmy state the arrival of asparagus says spring is here!

Students frequently ask the merits of thin versus thick asparagus. Are slender more tender or thicker tastier? Diameter doesn't determine taste or texture in the final cooked product. What is important is how you plan to use the vegetable.

For roasted asparagus, a quick and easy personal favorite, I will select medium-sized asparagus, roll the spears in extra-virgin olive oil and coarse salt and roast them in a hot oven until just tender. Steamed pencil thin asparagus with scallions are quickly sautéed with a bit of butter for a separate vegetable course. And asparagus as thick as cigars, cut into small pieces, are a meaty alternative when cooked with pasta in a lemony sauce.

To prepare asparagus for cooking I prefer to snap the spear where they naturally bend discarding the hard fibrous ends. The points along the spear can harbor sand and so will trim these away. A little time consuming but worth it. A tightly closed bud at the top of the spear is the key to selecting the best asparagus. The stalks should be firm, straight and smooth. Ridges indicate age. Choose the best you can and enjoy the flavors of spring.

ASPARAGUS AND SCALLION SAUTE

Serves 4

3/4 pound pencil thin asparagus, trimmed
1 bunch scallions, trimmed
Coarse (kosher) salt
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
Freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Snap off the woody ends of asparagus where the stalks naturally bend and discard stem ends. With tip of a paring knife, trim away the triangular scales along the stalks, leaving the tender buds at the top. Rinse well, pat dry with paper towels and cut in half on the diagonal.

2. Cut root ends of scallions; discard any bruised layers and dark green tops. Rinse well and pat dry with paper towels. Thinly slice 2 scallions, cutting remaining scallions the size of the asparagus.

3. Put the asparagus in a 10-inch skillet and fill with fresh cold water to barely cover. Bring to a boil, add salt to taste and adjust heat to medium. Simmer briskly for 4-5 minutes. Drain, cool to stop the cooking and set aside. Put the scallions in the same skillet and add water to barely cover as necessary. Bring to a boil and cook for 30-40 seconds. Drain and let cool.

4. Saute thinly sliced scallions in melted butter over medium heat until tender, about 1 minute. Add asparagus and scallions, salt and pepper and toss in the pan to heat through about 2 minutes. Serve warm or at room temperature.

BOW-TIE PASTA WITH ASPARAGUS AND LEMON

Serves 4-5

1 pound thick asparagus
1 pound bow-tie pasta
Coarse (kosher) salt
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 cup heavy cream or half and half
1/2 cup pasta cooking water
Zest and juice of 1 large lemon, about 4 tablespoons juice
Freshly ground pepper
1/3 cup freshly chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
Freshly grated Parmesan, optional

1. Snap off the woody ends of asparagus where the stalks naturally bend and discard stem ends. With the tip of a paring knife, trim away the triangular scales along the stalks, leaving the tender buds at the top. Rinse well, pat dry with paper towels and cut on the diagonal into 1/2-inch pieces.

2. Bring a 5-6 quart pot of water to the boil and add salt to taste. Put in the pasta all at once, stirring to separate the bows. Cook pasta about 8-10 minutes in rapidly boiling water until al dente or firm to the bite.

3. While the water comes to a boil and the pasta cooks, melt butter with the cream or half-and-half in a 12-inch skillet over medium low heat. Stir in lemon zest, juice and salt and pepper to taste. Add asparagus pieces with pasta cooking water and cook for 5-6 minutes. Add parsley, stir to mix and taste for seasoning. Keep warm over very low heat as necessary. Drain pasta and add to the sauce in the skillet. Stir to mix. Serve at once with freshly grated Parmesan cheese, if desired.

Asparagus, Planting to Harvest

This time of the year we think of asparagus. Green, crisp, crunchy, healthy, yummy, asparagus. What goes into planting and harvesting the little green gem is very important.

Though its name means sprout, asparagus is not the first edible sprout of spring. Garlic shoots come up long before, and so do stalks of rhubarb. Still, asparagus is truly an early crop, starting five to six weeks before the first peas. There's not much else in the garden then, and for that reason alone, asparagus would be prized.

The only real work connected with asparagus is preparing the soil before the roots go in. The site should be sunny, well drained and rich. Soil must be dug deeply and loosened, and if it's heavy clay, lightened with rotted leaves and/or compost.

Under cultivation, asparagus is a gross feeder; it must be to send up shoot after shoot every few days for week after week. Dig in composted manure, and add a balanced organic fertilizer (4-6-4). Then, over winter, lay on mulch of leaves or straw.

Very early spring, when roots are dormant, is the usual time for transplanting. Late fall is permissible, too, but it may not be as easy to find roots for sale, then. Count on twenty-five roots per person; forty to fifty, if you want to can or freeze them.

The idea of deep-trench planting of asparagus was brought to this country from Europe, where blanched stalks were long esteemed. Most people think green stalks look healthier, I don't know? After all, carrots, beets, and potatoes grow below ground without benefit of sun and air. Deep planting takes more skill; there's danger of smothering the crown before stalks have started to grow; the trench must be filled in very gradually. One advantage in a market garden is that deep planting permits cultivation in very early spring over the entire surface without damage to the crown and roots. But since no cultivation is necessary, if you mulch your asparagus patch, I've decided against deep planting.

Actually, my way, the Crow Miller way, should be called shallow, not surface planting. I make a furrow as for peas, about four inched deep, and spread the roots out sidewise, their crowns two feet apart. Don't poke the roots downward; later on, they will find their way below, five to eight feet into the subsoil. Fill in the furrow with compost, no more than two inches over the plants; firm well. A slight depression show; this can be filled in after growth has begun. Asparagus crowns tend to rise upward over the years, and if exposed, might be damaged by severe cold, though asparagus is classed hardy. A mulch, of course, will offset this danger.

The future care of a bed could be summed up in two words; mulch and feed.

Never pick thin stalks. The first few years stop picking after a few weeks. Once the bed is vigorous and well established you can safely pick from six to ten weeks. I started picking in quantity about May 1 and stop on July 4. Crowns will go on sending up shoots, but upon that top growth depends the vigor of next year's crop. Stalks sic to eight inches long are a good length for picking; the best-tasting asparagus, though, are the fat, purplish-pink spears about three to five inches. I break stalks off just above the butt. Since my plants are not deep-planted, I don't need to cut below the surface; possibly injuring other shoots just forming.

When the bed is young, the space between plants can be used for inter-cropping. Grow things like annual flowers, or alpine strawberries or parsley. Summer lettuce benefits from partial shade, or plant a permanent little one-foot hedge to the evergreen herb, winter savory.

To get more plants at no cost, you can save your own seeds. Pick the red, ripe berries on female plants. Spread them out in a protected airy place and let dry. Keep over winter in a dry place. Soak overnight before planting the next spring.

Seed saving makes an interesting experiment, but actually there are always plenty of volunteer seedlings to start a new bed with. Left in the old bed, they would turn it into a ferny jungle. Fall is the best time to transplant seedlings that have come up that season. Seed-sown plants from one's own stock may not run true, but they're usually good strong specimens.

One for the best features of asparagus is the ease with which it is harvested, cleaned, and prepared. It can be steamed, stir-fried, or eaten raw. But, be careful not to cook the spears too long or they will turn gray.

So not that you know about how to raise asparagus in your garden, what are you waiting for? Let's Get Growing! –Crow Miller

The Dish hears of a new gourmet chocolate company coming to the East End. Hamptons Chocolate is the brainchild of Steve Sygman and Marika Bodnarikova, two local residents who have been developing the product for the last two years. Produced in the kitchen of East Hampton's own Della Femina restaurant, the gourmet chocolates will soon be available at local gourmet shops and restaurants throughout the area. Sygman and Bodnarikova use chocolate from Venezuela, Madagascar, France and Belgium. Sources say each chocolate is hand-made and or hand-dipped, often using organic flavorings and exotic nuts. For more info on how to get some of these delicious gourmet treats call (631) 255-5305.

Yet another reminder about Hamptons Restaurant Week. If you haven't already heard, this exciting new annual event will take place March 30 through April 6, with participating restaurants (Della Femina, Pacific East, Nick & Toni's, Rowdy Hall, Oasis, The Wild Goose, redbar brasserie, Seafood Barge, The Coast Grill, Tierra Mar, The Plaza Café, George Martin, Almond, Robert's, Paradise Café, Rubi Red, and Mary Jane's) offering a $19.95 prix fixe dinner the week of the promotion. Bedell Cellars and Corey Creek will provide all the above-mentioned restaurants with bottles of red and white wine to be sold to patrons for $19.95 each. Also on board, Hampton's Luxury Liner will offer a $19.95 discounted fare (both ways). Most recently The Hampton Coffee Company in Water Mill has signed on to participate. They will sell 2 lbs. of coffee for the low price of (you guessed it) $19.95. Also, they will offer a complementary beverage with any lunch entrée. Breaking with the $19.95 theme, Hampton Resort and Hospitality will have rooms available for $80 per night double occupancy. Red Barn B & B (631-722-3695), a bed & breakfast on the North Fork in Jamesport, is offering a discounted rate of $125 per night double occupancy including a full breakfast and afternoon tea. Guests must mention Hamptons Restaurant Week to get the discounted rate. For restaurants owners (and others) who want tol get involved, it's still not to late. Call WordHampton Public Relations at 631-329-0050. Patrons looking for more info can do the same, or log on to www.wordhampton.com. This weeklong event appears to be developing into a great opportunity for all Hamptons restaurants and restaurant goers, so don't miss out.

Noticed anything different about The Grill in East Hampton? The popular restaurant located on Newtown Lane has officially changed its name to the hipper 29 Bar & Grill, referring to its street address.

Oasis in Noyac recently reopened on March 7. The critically acclaimed waterfront restaurant serves dinner Friday, Saturday, and Sunday starting at 5:30.

You can now enjoy sushi in Southampton Village. 75 Main has designated Friday night Sushi Night, with a three coarse prix fixe for $24.95. The special is offered 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Almond has a great deal for all you moviegoers. The quaint Bridgehampton bistro offers a free dessert when you present a movie ticket stub. They also have a $19 prix fixe every night before 7 p.m. and all night Monday. Stop in before or after your next trip to the cinema to take advantage of these great discounts.

Looking for a romantic place to dine with a date? Check out The 1770 House. This elegant East Hampton eatery and lodge offers two prix fixe specials, one for $29 and a second for $59. Try their Sundays brunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The founder and father of "New Journalism" Tom Wolfe, was recently sighted in Southampton's Plaza Café. The famous writer and artist reportedly stopped in with a female companion to sample the seafood sausage.

WLNG's legendary Paul Sydney was spotted in Sag Harbor's Conca D'Ora last Friday. Reportedly, Sydney thoroughly enjoyed the baked penne with tomato sauce.

About Face... with Annette

I have been asked by email about the application and techniques of eyeshadow. I thought I'd save some up to do a little column on them. Here are a few of the Q&A's.

Q- How do models get several shades of shadow on their lids without them all running into each other and looking a mess?

A- First of all, start with really clean brushes or sponges. If you fail to do this, you will have a blend of whatever colors you have been using! Wash daily in some light baby shampoo and water and let dry thoroughly. I stand mine up in a tubular type container, a cup will do fine. Put a base color on your eyes from your lashes to the crease. Brush from the temple towards the nose at all times, being careful not to exceed these points. I usually wipe between swipes to sort of fade it. Remember, the first place you lay your color down will be the heaviest and darkest. Always tap or blow your brush before applying. Once you have that done, using a darker contrasting shade of the same hue, apply under your brow to the top of the crease. Then you can do your orbital bone area with the darkest of the three. Work once again from the outside in... blend, blend, blend! By doing this constantly you shouldn't see a stop and go line anywhere, more of a flow of colors.

Q- How does Jennifer Lopez do her eyes?

A- This really has been coming up frequently. She does the three shades of color as well, but she uses and extremely light color close to her lashes, sometimes much lighter than what she uses under her brow. If your brow is prominent, you may want to go with a darker color than your base because it will make it recede. The same principle goes for a less prominent underbrow, you can make it look larger by adding a lighter color. Dark recedes and light comes forward. Good to remember when choosing colors and this is why a lot of shadow trios use this in their palette. So, now JLo has the light color near her lashes and a medium tone in her crease... she then goes and applies a very stark straight line close to her lashes lining her eye perfectly. Rather than opting for the blended look there – her liner is very visible. Thin yet visible. She doesn't overdo her lashes either – very combed and groomed.

Q-Which is best, powder eyeshadow or pencil?

A- I think that is becoming a matter of preference. The old school of thought was that if you were over a certain age, cream shadows and some moisture-based crayons were best. They used to say the matte shades would just fall into the creases and accentuate them even more. Same for blushes But now, the powders have really stepped up to the plate and have some of the most beautiful finishes for blending. I would look into both. I personally like powder because I find it so much easier to blend. I get a lot of stops and starts with pencils. Be careful when purchasing and color in the pencil form, most importantly the eye shades. They have been known, especially with the cheap-

Interiors & Exteriors

Either / Or

There are two basic ways to have the floors in your home done: carpeting or hardwood. When I moved to Los Angeles a few years back, one of the first things I noticed was that all the apartments I looked at were carpeted. Some, even had carpet in the bathrooms. This was a new phenomenon to me. In New York it is incredibly rare to find an apartment with carpeting in all the rooms. Once in awhile there might be some carpeting in the bedrooms, but that is usually the extent of it.

At first I attributed this East Coast-West Coast battle to the difference in ages between the buildings. Obviously, the places in Manhattan are comparatively older. But, it turned out, age has little do with it. The older buildings in Los Angeles that were even first built with hardwood floors originally, have since mostly been redone with carpeting. So why the difference in style between the coasts? Well, New Yorkers tend to think more long-term.

Carpeting, as it turns out, is much cheaper to maintain and install than hardwood flooring. Carpeting should be redone every eight to twelve years, under normal conditions (e.g. how many people are living in the household). Despite the constant upkeep, it still turns out to be less expensive: a good quality carpet can cost as little as $1.80 per square foot. You can go more expensive if you want, but even at a buck and a half a square you should be getting a relatively solid quality of carpet. It is also a lot easier to maintain. Once it is in, it is in for whatever span of time it lasts. The only necessary upkeep is vacuuming. And there is no need to lay down high-grade carpet in every room. Lower trafficked areas, like the bedroom, can handle a lower quality while still lasting the same amount of time; so when it comes to getting new carpet, you can do it all at once. Your carpeting is a key decorative tool for the room too. Whatever color or design you choose will change the way the entire room is perceived, which is both positive and negative. At least, if you get bored, you can always lay down another color and it will feel like a whole new room. Then, in the winter, your feet will not have to freeze every time it touches the ground, which would have done wonders for everyone this past season.

However, a good hardwood floor will have a much longer life expectancy than even the best quality of carpet. Most hardwood floors do not need to be replaced more than every thirty years, though it does tend to need to be redone or refurbished every ten to fifteen years, (which is why it is so much more expensive in the end, though many companies will give warranties on the floor for up to two decades). And there is little doubt to as to the difference in character hardwood flooring can give to a room compared to carpeting. It is a warmer, simpler, homier design for a room on top of just being more durable and easier to decorate around, taking the floor out of the picture. In essence, it creates a design all its own without being the center of attention. Oh, and it increases the value of any home in the end more than ant carpet. But it is dramatically more expensive to install, ranging in price from $2.50 per square foot to $4.50 or more, depending on the kind of wood you want and whether it is finished. A lot of money can be saved by installing it yourself, but it can be extremely time-consuming, which might make it worthy of spending the extra cash.

er ones, to contain little shards of splinters of wood. Make sure if you do use pencils, you have them sharpened and you don't use it in a worn down condition.

Q- What can I do to refresh my eye makeup at the end of the day if I am going out? Do I need to carry all my tricks with me?

A- Well, you are going to have to carry some, perhaps not all. Sometimes just going out in the evening requires just a bit more intensity and a more dramatic lipstick to make your face pop!! If you want to touch up your eyeliner, particularly under the eyes where it might have smeared, use a powder shadow instead of a pencil. Use the corner or side of your makeup sponge to remove any evidence of smeared eyeliner. If your eyeshadows have creased, blot the area gently with a tissue or blotting paper and then use a brush to smooth out the color. Apply a powder over the area to even out the shadows and add whatever color is needed to make your eye makeup look balanced. Finally, reapply your lip liner and lipstick.

Due to a computer meltdown in December, I lost my files and one I wanted to address was the gal who asked about facial hair and self esteem. If she is reading, I would appreciate another email.. thanks!'

Police Blotter

They say detective work is all about pounding the pavement, and last week Corporal Jon Schoen showed how some fancy footwork could do the trick. Finding footprints in the snow next to a snowplow that some plow plunderer had snatched for a ride, Schoen photographed the prints and took the pictures to Footlocker in Bridgehampton. Footlocker was stumped but the crafty corporal searched the Internet for the shoe print brand. Finding the pattern, a suspected plow pilferer appeared before the police and was arrested when his shoes matched the crime.

It seems a Montauk couple has a real pole problem. Just after she was arrested for drunken driving and hitting a utility pole, her boyfriend, rushing to the scene hit the same pole. Her car hit the pole three feet off the ground and he hit the downed pole and did minor damage to his SUV. Just goes to show that some people are meant to be together. Poles everywhere are worried about the violence.

A Noyac woman told police that when she came home from work she found tire tracks on her front lawn, a fifteen-foot tree knocked down and curbing blocks moved around. Police have no suspects – but they do think it might have something to do with a truck.

It's a good thing criminals aren't too smart. After hitting a woman over the head with a stick the police found the stick in question hidden in an abandoned car on the man's property. The man lived on Edge of Woods Road, but apparently the notion of throwing the stick in the woods didn't occur to this wacky wacker.

How to foil a robber 101: just run. That's exactly what a Getty gas station clerk in Sag Harbor did when a masked man with a gun entered his store. With only a hundred dollars on him, the attendant worried that the robber would start firing away when he didn't get a pile of cash, so he ran out the door to the nearby fire station where he called the police.

What is the world coming to when the criminals can't even figure out which drug to use? After smoking crack and pot, an eighteen-year-old Southamptonite was arrested for a traffic violation. This guy' s life is definitely up in smoke.

Dan's Letters

AN INTERESTING HISTORY

Dear Dan,

I remember our meeting several times and I congratulate you on the ongoing success of Dan's Papers and its insinuation into the cultural life on the East End.

I read your January 24 story on the 3 Houses...

Yes indeedy, my former residence, the Ark has burned down. Some additional information that you or your readers may find of interest:

I researched and collected old maps (which I ultimately gifted to Martin Richards on Gin Lane for his collection) and I discovered that the Ark was originally know as The Parrish House. When Walter Stubeleck (the caretaker of The Ark) met me in 1977, he told me that his father had seen a meadow of several hundred feet in depth (with cattle grazing) before the actual sand beach began; he also described the 1938 hurricane and told me of the origin of the name of the house "The Ark." It seems that all of the Victorian "cottages" were crushed by the resistance they gave to the enormous surge of water which spilled over the beach, but because of an aberration in design, the windows for the staff (which were on the lowest level of The Ark) faced the ocean and provided a passageway for the sea surge to go under the Ark and through it, knocking out the basement, kitchen and the staff quarters, but leaving the entire dwelling standing. When the local residents ventured out to see what damage had happened, they could not approach except by boat. A large pond of salt water had formed around this enormous house (22,000 sq. feet); the top three stories of The Ark seemed to sit in the ocean because of the curvilinear shape of the sun room. Because of the undulating nature of the roof it was immediately dubbed "Noah's Ark" – the name quickly abbreviated to "The Ark."

Other tidbits:

1. During the Saturday Night Fever period when I lived there we installed massive speakers on the beach and it was known as "Disco Beach."
2. The volleyball games on Disco Beach were with Olivia Newton John, John Travolta, Robert Stigwood, Allan Carr, Pat Birch and Bill Becker and their children, Andy Gibb, Tim Rice, Peter Brown, Yvonne Elliman, Eric Clapton and a whole collection of the Robert Stigwood Saturday Night Fever/Grease family.
3. We also provided the house as the "Love Nest" for Victoria Principal and Andy Gibb during their short lived, but lusty affair.

All in all, we had great times. The passing of The Ark is the passing of a piece of Southampton history. Although the house recently appeared in the coffee table book, The Hamptons with photographs by Ken Miller (Rizzzoli), my favorite photograph taken by Francesco Scavullo is enclosed.

POTHOLE PANDEMONIUM

Dear Dan,

The Hamptons have gone to pot... potholes, that is. On Friday, as I was driving along Deerfield Road from Noyac Road to Montauk Highway, I swerved to avoid hiting a deer which had run in front of my car. My right rear tire hit a large pothole, blew it out and I lost control of the car. I skidded across the road and missed hitting a large oak tree by inches. (It's ironic, since I'm a tree surgeon). It seemd the trees were trying to exact their revenge.

I changed my tire and drove to Southampton Tire to get a replacement. Upon arriving at the tire place, I was told that last Saturday was "Pothole Day." They were so busy with so many people hitting potholes and getting flat tires that they could barely keep up with business.

By the end of the day, all these flats rubbered them the wrong way. You might say they were flat tired!

Treely Yours,
Richard Sawyer

DAN JUST MIGHT BE ELVIS

Dear Dan,

It was a pleasure to see you at our cocktail party fund-raiser for out Interfaith Volunteer Program on Thursday, February 27 at the Southampton Publick House. It was a great success and everyone had a great time with Elvis. Thank you for stopping by, and especially for writing such a wonderful article which brought attention to our agency and its work.

The Interfaith Volunteer Program is a vital non-medical adjunct to our home healthcare agency. One of the major services performed by the volunteers is is to provide medical transportation for those unable to access healthcare services. Other services include friendly visiting to the lonely and isolated cooking and delivering hot meals at the holidays brief respite for full-time caregivers, and a shopping service used as a training program by agencies for the developmentally disabled.

By the way, we think you are more than a local publisher. We love Dan's Papers. And yes, you are a celebrity – A List.
